“Sexual harassment” refers to any unwanted, unwelcome and uninvited behaviour of a sexual nature that results in a person feeling humiliated, intimidated and offended, and, under the circumstances, it would be reasonable for them to feel this way. The perception by an employee that they have been sexually harassed is sufficient for them to lodge a complaint.

Sexual harassment does not refer to behaviour based on mutual attraction, friendship and respect, if the interaction is consensual, welcome and reciprocated.

Sexual harassment is unlawful under both the Equal Opportunity Act 1984 and the Sex Discrimination Act 1984, and can, expose employees and the organisation to both legal action and issues of liability.

SEXUAL HARASSMENT POLICY

- Ensure that employees who make or support a complaint of sexual harassment are not subsequently subjected to victimisation;
- Ensure that any employee found guilty of making mischievous or vexatious complaints relating to sexual harassment is disciplined accordingly; and
- Take all reasonable steps to ensure there is no recurrence of the offence.

In addition to this, all employees have a responsibility to assist SGT by ensuring that:

- They comply with this Sexual Harassment Policy, by ensuring that they do not perpetrate sexual harassment in the workplace;
- They offer assistance or support to any person being harassed; and
- They keep any complaint confidential to avoid idle gossip and to prevent potential defamatory proceedings being taken against them.

If any employee feels that they have been sexually harassed, they may make a complaint by following either the process set out in this Sexual Harassment Policy, or other appropriate company procedure, according to their preference.

Complaint Procedure:

If any employee believes or perceives that they are or have been sexually harassed, they should approach the harasser and ask them to stop the offending behaviour.

If the employee with the complaint is either not satisfied with the outcome of their discussions with the harasser, or feels uncomfortable about approaching the harasser on their own, the employee may seek the assistance of an appropriately trained Contact Officer who will provide support and advice to the employee of their options for resolving the complaint.

A Contact Officer will provide advice and support for any person who believes they have been harassed and bullied, even if they do not wish to take formal action. The Contact Officer will not be involved in any way with the formal investigation or resolution of a complaint.

If the matter is not resolved informally, the employee may wish to make a complaint of harassment to management. An employee may elect to make such a complaint as an initial step without approaching the harasser, for example, if the allegations are serious. The support and advice of a Contact Officer may still be accessed throughout this time.

Following the initial report, if the matter is deemed to warrant further action being taken, the employee will be requested to put their complaint in writing, which will include the action they want taken against the employee(s) concerned. This action may include, but not be limited to:

- Arranging for someone to speak to the person(s) responsible for the alleged sexual harassment;
- Arranging a mediation meeting where an independent party will assist to resolve the issue(s); and/or
- Making a formal complaint that will involve the conduct of an investigation into the alleged incident(s).

All complaints will be investigated promptly, fairly and confidentially by the nominated Complaints Officer. The investigation will involve the interviewing of any employee who has been complained about, who will be provided with an opportunity to respond to the allegations made against them. Any other person(s) who may have been involved or who may have witnessed the incident(s) will also be interviewed as part of the investigation.

During any meetings or discussions, every employee will have the right to be represented or accompanied by a person of their choosing, such as a work colleague, family member or friend.

Following the investigation, the employee who has made the complaint will be informed of what action (if any) is proposed to be taken by SGT and the reasons for such action, or lack of action being taken.

If any employee is not comfortable in approaching the nominated Contact Officer or other nominated representative of SGT in the first instance, or if they are not satisfied with the way their complaint has been handled by the organisation, they have the right to refer the matter to a relevant statutory authority, such as the Equal Opportunity Commission.
